Dear Friends,

For thousands of years, man demonstrated his storytelling prowess through cave paintings found the world over, through artifacts that demonstrated storytelling imagery and even through burial ceremonies where tools, skulls of sacred animals and other things left behind helped to tell a story about themselves.

Modern research has shown that these stories still resonate with us today. Something inside of us pleads for explanations for things we can't understand, universal questions like why are we here, who put us here, what is my purpose and what is the meaning of my life?
