

Dear Friends,

GREAT NEWS! The Spirits Still Move Us just won BEST DOCUMENTARY in the Reedy Reels Film Festival!

Thousands of people have already seen the film in several states so far and the response has been amazing. Its clear that after 50+ films, that people really appreciate hearing the truth, not the usual myths promulgated by the media to deride things they don't understand.

That's why we make these films. Commercial media is about selling products and services and they do that by telling you stories, and bending the facts out of proportion. Documentary films are about

CONTEXT, PERSPECTIVE, and FAIRNESS, a far cry from 24/7 cable news that's all about alarmism, sensationalism and polarization.

Filmmaker David Weintraub interviews Cherokee Elder, Storyteller and Mask Maker, Davy Archer.

We're off and running on the new documentary. As I continue to do research and hold interviews, the focus of the film is crystallizing more each day. The short summary of where this film is currently heading is the Wisdom of Nature as told through native thought and stories and through science. Native people for thousands of years have understand how EVERYTHING IS CONNECTED. Only recently has Western science caught up with indigenous wisdom. That's because Western scientific thought is about reducing things down into their elements but in the process often losing the forest for the trees (pun intended!)

We'll talk more about this as we continue work on the new film over the next year or so.

THE SPIRITS STILL MOVE THEM ACCEPTED AT NEW FESTIVAL!

The Center's moonshine film has just been accepted to the Longleaf Pine Film Festival for May 14th. If you're going to be in the Raleigh area come join us! Visit the festival's website to see the films that
